Fall Treatment for Cut Worms.

Experimental Farm, Lethbridge.

To the Editor of "The Review."
Dear Sir.—The Dominion Entomologist, Dr. G. Gordon Hewitt, has been good enough to prepare a short article on the fall treatment for cut worms. Those farmers who have been unfortunate enough to suffer during the past summer from the ravages of these little pests will I am sure appreciate what he has to say. The only suggestion that I would wish to add to those made by Dr. Hewitt is the importance of harrowing the land as fast as it is plowed this fall. The most satisfactory way of doing this is to attach a section of the harrow behind the plow in case a silky or gusset is used. If a walking plough is used hook on to the harrow at noon and at night before leaving the field.

To much emphasis cannot be laid on this point because if the ground is left irregular and lumpy it dries out more rapidly than if it is harrowed. In addition to this, if it is harrowed while still moist after being turned over by the mold board of the plough, it is not made powdery, (which is more or less the case when land is harrowed when the surface is quite dry) but is left in a fine mellow condition with the particles of the soil, though small, in a granular rather than a powdery condition, hence it is not inclined to blow or drift nearly as badly with the wind.

Enclosed you will find Dr. Hewitt's article. Very sincerely,
W. H. Fairfield,
Superintendent.

DR. HEWITT'S REPORT.

As cut worms have done serious damage in many parts of Alberta, particularly throughout the southern portion of the province, during the past season, it is important that preventive measures be now adopted, as far as is possible, so as to lessen the outbreak of these insects in 1912.

The eggs, which develop from cut worms, appear about two weeks after the injury ceases, that is, in most years during July or early August. On emerging they soon lay the eggs from which the cut worms come. Some kinds of cutworm eggs hatch in late summer, others do not hatch until spring. These clusters of eggs are laid on weeds or other succulent vegetation which may be nearby, or upon the remains of crops. In order, therefore, to destroy as many as possible of these unhatched eggs on the young hibernating cutworms it is necessary to plow deeply all fields where these insects have been troublesome this year. Such plowing not only destroys many of the eggs and the young cutworms, but also numerous of other insects which hibernate beneath fallen plants, refuse, etc. In gardens all remains of crops or other refuse should be carefully gathered up and destroyed by burning. Fall plowing should always be practised where circumstances will permit. On account of the copious rains which have recently fallen throughout Southern Alberta, fall plowing, this autumn especially, is rendered possible and I would therefore strongly urge all farmers to plough as much of their land as is possible before the approach of winter. By such plowing the eggs of cutworms are buried and thus destroyed, or the earthworm cells containing the young caterpillars are disturbed and broken and the cutworms exposed to severe weather which is fatal to them. Not only will fall plowing destroy large numbers of these insects but the land of course will be put into much better condition for early spring sowing.

On the first appearance of cutworms in the spring a few rows of poisoned bean will avert much damage. Half a pound of Paris green is sufficient to poison fifty pounds of bean. The latter should first be moistened slightly with sweetened water and the Paris green then dusted in gently and the bean stirred up so that practically every particle will be poisoned. For field use this mixture can be spread by means of a wheel sower, and should be put out in early evening or under normal conditions cutworms only feed at night. In gardens the mixture may be spread by hand, and the plants to be protected.

(Signed) Gordon Hewitt.

Gas Charter

The following on the Natural Gas Commission, which is taken from the High River Times, will, we think be of interest to our readers. The natural gas question is something that all the doctors of Bow Island should look into thoroughly, and this is the report of the last meeting held at High River. "Another meeting of the representatives of the various towns along the line of the C. & E. R. between Medicine Hat and Calgary, was held in High River on Monday last, to discuss the natural gas question as submitted by the Canadian Western Natural Gas, Light Heat and Power Co., for the supplying of gas to consumers in the province of Alberta. At the meeting previous to this, the opinion appeared to be unanimous that the twenty year franchise was objectionable, and each representative present stated so unambiguously. Mr. McLean of Calgary, who represented the Gas Co., at the meeting, said his company was prepared to listen to changes being made in other details, but as regards the period of 20 years for power and 35 years for domestic use, and the 20 year franchise was final and would not be changed.

MADE FROM ENDS OF RIBBON

and to the silk-covered bottom by strong silk. Cut four pointed pieces, the bases corresponding with the sides of the box cover and attach as shown in the photograph. At the pointed top of each flap sew a ribbon. The four strands must be tied together to close the box. Place a little gold or silver lace at the junction of the lower part with the top flaps, and finish with a line of ribbon and bows at the corners.

A square receptacle is shown that suggests a box for use of an ordinary pasteboard, with the bottom and two long sides are used. These you must cover with figured silk. Then a little departure must be made from the ordinary use of silk or ribbon that will exactly fit at the short end of the box. Give it drawing-strings and sew it firmly in, so that it will close. The box may be divided into two or three compartments will close the other end. The top, you will notice, is left open. The whole may be made in any size, and easily followed in large or small size.

Always in style is the Japanese doll with its little crusted kimono of ribbon and its padded base for pins. This latest variation is made of a single row of gathered ribbon, or it can be soft cotton. Two bows of ribbon decorate each side.

For the basket in the last idea for eager needlewomen. Cut pieces of cardboard with rounded tops and cover with silk. Then attach to a base of cardboard with a cord, and glue together. Force into the basket a silk

Goldfish

IT IS not generally known that if a nick goldfish be put for a minute or two in salted water it will recover and swim as usual. The reason is it is simply "droopy" and not affected by a serious disease. Never, however, put a fish that is well in anything but salt water, for salt water will surely kill it.

WITH ONE STRING OF PEARLS

Cabinet and Window Seat

THE arrangement of cabinet and window seat shown in the illustration provides an excellent lounging place where one may read with the books, or use the seat to store books conveniently at hand, while the children can stow their toys under the seat or in the lower portions of the cabinet.

AN exact dimension for the length of the seat cannot be given, because rooms vary in width. If the room is a proper lounging place, five feet for the seat proper should be allowed at the least. The seat should be placed so that the attraction is supported on one end by the wall at one of the angles of the room. Should you wish to build the seat and cabinet on the other side of the room, it ends, add a side piece and one support

Material

Popular, white or southern pine, 1 inch in thickness, will answer. Have the mill cut them to the required sizes and planed them smooth:

1 cabinet top	21 by 30 inches
2 cabinet sides	16 by 30 inches
10 inches wide by any required length	inches
2 cabinet ends	16 by 30 inches
1 bottom	14 by 30 inches
1 support	16 by 30 inches
1 cabinet door	21 by 30 inches
Published sides	21 by 30 inches

18 pieces is the total.

Lumber for construction, purchased and planed at the mill, of course, provides this ideal seat; however, any person clever with tools can make such a seat with odds and ends of stout boards and the like.

The cushion on the seat should be at least three inches thick. The outside covering of olive green denim should conceal an inner cushion, made of muslin, thus keeping the stuffing from working through the outer cover. This muslin cushion may be stuffed with cotton wadding, tow or hair. (Full directions for making such a cushion will be given in the article to follow, describing the making of slip covers, etc.) Should the seat be a long one, it will be advisable to make it in sections, as it is easier to clean when so constructed.

Knotted and hanging

Worn any parts it is due to the cleverness of the owner. If you are clever, you probably will enjoy a resumé of the protean string; if you never could do things, here is the story.

If you own a long string of pearls or coral beads, or, in fact, of any kind, do not let it stay in its one form. Use it for three or four different purposes.

First, it can be twined around the hair in three bands quite like the Grecian headress. If too long, knot the beads in two or three places at the top. Clasp the ends of the string at the back and join the hair where the clasp is. When you wish to combing, the beautiful result, you can unclasp the ends and straighten out the beads.

Now they are ready for the next change.

Do you need an ornament in the form of a cabochon on fachu or hat? Just cut out a circular disk of net or scrim, cover it with maille or silk and wind the string of beads so that a rosette will be formed. This can be caught in place by a few stitches in a few minutes.

The main use for a string of beads is, of course, decorative, but it need not the neck. Knot the strings halfway up, making a double string.

For a change, wind the string about the neck in eight or nine strands to form a dog collar. In other words, a string of beads need not remain in its original state. Turn it to another use if you wish.

And just as a parting suggestion, buy a string of beads and break the thread. Use the little forms for embroidery in this great season of embroidery. It is much cheaper than buying them by the dozen strands at exorbitant prices per strand.

White beads can be colored by applying stencil dyes or paint.

Courtship

That Came In Like a
Lamb and Went Out

By EMMA THURSTON

Copyright by American Press Association, 1913.

In my childhood there were very few fields open to women, and we were not ambitious to occupy those we were at liberty to enter. A woman would at that time rather rely on a man for her living than on her own exertions. I am one of those who believe that women are fitted for the home and are not fitted for making their own living. When Wilbur first came courting me I persuaded myself that I loved him, possibly because it was to my interest to love him. He was a strong character. At any rate, he had a strong will, and I was sure the former cannot exist without the latter.

It seemed to me that he was just the kind of husband for a weak woman like myself. I would be content to let him mould me into the shape of the world for us both, and that was just should be time to go. But unfortunately among my other weaknesses is indecision, and for my life I couldn't make up my mind whether I preferred the mountains or the seashore. I knew a place in the former that was perfectly lovely, but the land was bad. Then I knew a place at the seashore where the notes at which I should wish to stop, was excellent, but a woman went there every summer whom I disliked, and I couldn't bear the idea of being stuck up with her under the same roof.

The last of July came round, and I had decided nothing. Wilbur asked me one day what I had done, and I said I had been unable to settle on anything. I asked him to decide the matter.

"I know nothing about summer or winter," he replied. "I've never had occasion to use one of them. You must settle on the place."

He arranged for his cutting for two weeks from the 15th of July. Just before the time to go he was very busy getting ready to be absent from business, and I didn't see him for a week.

Then he came around on the evening of the 14th of July and asked where we were going. I told him I didn't know.

There was a sea March wind between us. I told him that I had engaged myself to a strong character and I might have to rely on him in many matters, and he asked me what matters I intended to take under my wing.

I told him that I could make any of my mind quick enough if I wished to, and he asked me to name it, and I told him I would drop him a line. The next morning at 10 I took a train for the mountains. A few days after I received his letter. I told him I was very busy and really should not take the time.

This came pretty near making a permanent break between us. I was miffed at having been called upon to take the 14th of July and my betrothal survived it, and when I returned to the house, where I would have to live, it looked as if I should have to live there.

It looked as if I should have to live there. It looked as if I should have to live there. It looked as if I should have to live there.

FOOTBALL IS DANGEROUS

If You Don't Think So Try to Start a Game in Turkey.

It is, or was until recently a difficult matter to start a game in Turkey. The football team tried it, with a result which would seem to serve as a lesson for a detective story or a comic opera.

The young Turkish football team, with a coach and a few friends, went to a football team among his friends, to play a game with some Greeks and Armenians, and began practicing. Not very long after, in the middle of the night, police came to his house and carried him off to court.

The authorities were convinced that he had found a great plot, and that the club must be a secret society. A special messenger was sent for the ball, and that was duly examined and found to be an informal machine.

The rules of the game were considered to be another piece of damning evidence, and still worse were the sweaters or jerseys of the club.

After long deliberation the culprit was sent to the higher police court in Istanbul, who went through a long trial, and finally the court came to the conclusion that the empire had been saved from disintegration by the club.

After much careful thought and examination of the evidence of the crime it was decided that there might not be anything in it, but that it had been committed again—Harper's Weekly.

It was the bridge's privilege to name the wedding day. When this has been arranged a list is made of the close friends and relatives of the bride and groom, so that nobody will be slighted by not getting an invitation.

It is very usual to use the letters of the alphabet for putting down the names, searching the memory as each letter presents itself for the name that begins with it. The invitations should be looked at least a month before the wedding, so that arrangements for the church and the choice of the music can be made.

Gold and white, however, is always in good taste.

Good Form

The Luncheon Table.

Crystal continued with silver making beautiful and artistic decorations for the luncheon table. The luncheon dishes, Composites and dishes for almonds and salted nuts, olives, etc. are larger than those formerly in use and are almost flat.

A useful stand for the center of the table consists of a silver vase with branching arms bearing five flat bouillon dishes. Another design has a large basket in the center for flowers, and the arms hold small baskets filled with olives.

Carved rock crystal is used in place of the old fashioned cut glass urns. One has a large supply of cut glass and does not wish to lay in a supply of glass, even if the style is newer.

In China a good decorative style at the moment has a very narrow line of color with a dull gold band at the edge.

It is the bride's privilege to name the wedding day. When this has been arranged a list is made of the close friends and relatives of the bride and groom, so that nobody will be slighted by not getting an invitation.

SAVAGES AND CLOTHES.

Caravans That Was Not Appreciated by the Missionaries.

Ardent missionaries were trying to convert the natives of a village in upland Africa to modern ways as well as Christianity and for that purpose provided them with all more or less complete outfits of clothes. The natives were delighted and sent several of their sons to the one nearest village to study in the school of civility.

But when Sunday arrived and the blacks thronged to the weekly church service, carrying the new clothes, the missionaries were dismayed and feared some of the natives would be converted.

They seemed to be the usual kind of curiosity and reverence on the part of the natives they decided to ask no questions until after the service. There was a very quiet until just as the sermon was begun.

Then suddenly a huge cry, which had been waiting with its face to ward the open doorway, leaped to its feet with an exclamation.

Immediately the others of the tribe did likewise, crying, "The sun—the sun—the sun!" and then they rushed and proceeded to put on their clothes.

"What does it all mean?" inquired one of the white teachers.

The old chief turned to him with equal amazement. "Of course," said he, "we are all going to the church to see the new clothes."

It is very usual to use the letters of the alphabet for putting down the names, searching the memory as each letter presents itself for the name that begins with it. The invitations should be looked at least a month before the wedding, so that arrangements for the church and the choice of the music can be made.

Gold and white, however, is always in good taste.

what he liked. I could see by the way he talked that he had but very little respect for women's opinions in affairs of state, and he would be likely to consult me about his affairs.

I realized that I could not help him in this respect, and I had no desire to do so. My department would be the home, where I would have all the responsibility.

It would seem from what I have said that Wilbur and I would be especially fitted for each other. But to make assurance doubly sure there is always directed between couples the engagement period. Yet, I am free to say, sometimes, like the month

Don't forget the big dance in the L.O.O.F. hall, Monday, Oct. 30th.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Murray were in town Wednesday to attend the meeting of the Robekah Lodge.

The special publicity number for the Bow Island Review is now ready. Copies may be obtained at this office at 10c. each.

The dance spoken of in our last week's issue has been postponed until Monday, Oct. 30, when a good time is assured to all who come.

J. E. May returned on Friday last from his farm in Saskatchewan and has taken up his homestead duties here for the winter.

Mr. C. A. Van Houten of Nelson, B.C., arrived in town on Thursday, and went out to his homestead, the east half of 20-4-10, to do the customary duties.

The first touch of winter was experienced in Bow Island this week, and a fall of snow with the thermometer below freezing point warns all householders to give more than a passing glance at their coal supply.

No. 5 gas well was tapped on Tuesday and a flow of gas was encountered measuring 5,000,000 every twenty-four hours. In all, the gas company has now at its disposal a flow of gas amounting in the aggregate to the stupendous total of sixty-two million feet of gas for the twenty-four hours.

A very good meeting was held in the L.O.O.F. hall on Wednesday evening to discuss the formation of a Robekah Lodge for Bow Island. An energetic committee was formed and arrangements will be made to institute the Lodge, if possible, next week. The Lodge promises to be a strong one right from the start, and some excellent officers will be chosen from the ladies who have taken the matter in hand.

P. E. Ludtke visited Lethbridge Wednesday.

E. B. Weed of Winnifred was a visitor here on Thursday.

Mrs. Houghlin and Mrs. Archie Houghlin were visitors to Lethbridge on Tuesday.

Ferne Brothers have opened up a gent's furnishing store this week, east end of Pacific Ave.

J. W. Campbell, who has been visiting his farm at Cayley for a few weeks, returned on Friday last.

S. J. Bull, who has been residing at Staveland, Alta., for the last two months, returned to Bow Island yesterday.

Services in connection with the Norwegian (Lutheran) church will be held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday Oct. 29, at 2 p.m.

A banquet is to be given this evening in the new hotel at Winnifred by the L.O.O.F. of that town. A strong contingent from the Bow Island Lodge is expected to be present.

Don't forget the Thanksgiving supper on Monday evening, next in the Presbyterian Church. The members of the Ladies Aid have with their usual good vigor arranged a very pleasant evening.

Harvest Festival services will be held in All Saints' church on Sunday, Oct. 29. There will be a Celebration Holy Communion at 11 a.m., Evensong at 7:30 p.m. A cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

A party of C.P.R. surveyors have been busy around here the last two weeks. What their object is we have not as yet learned. We can state, however, they have not and it is not in connection with the new shops.

Rev. M. L. Wright's little boy had a fall this week and sustained a most painful injury by biting quite a large piece of his tongue off. The little fellow was taken to the doctor's where the piece was neatly stitched on, and we are pleased to hear he is now progressing very favorably.

Water, water, everywhere, and not a drop in sight.

Miss Myrtle and Master Ross Archibald, of Alva, Man., arrived in town on Friday and are visiting their aunt, Mrs. S. G. Jamieson.
